

Are Your Top Performers' Resumes Locked and Loaded?

Or did you re-engage them this year? When your staff is fully engaged, employees feel energized and empowered to succeed on the job, and they want to give their best to what they are doing. They are sometimes so absorbed in the tasks at hand that they may be surprised when it's time to move on to lunch.

Or, they may just be going through the motions and daydreaming of moving on.

Cloning is Out, Benchmarking is Better

No more jokes about wishing you could 'clone' that high performing employee. Enough sifting through a haystack of resumes, hoping to find someone who fits the job as well as the terrific employee you'd love to clone. No need to waste time and money on unnecessary turnover.

Employers who wear out busy staff with a tedious hiring process are using an 'old school' approach - advertising, using a standard job description, scanning resumes, and wasting long hours in unproductive interviews and training. And in addition to all that, they're wasting precious time on the wrong candidates!

But that doesn't have to be you, because...Read More
